OFFICE 212 SOUTH MAIN STREET.

TUESDAY, MARCH 6, 1900.

Hancock county Republicans have also passed around the hat for Taylor and sent him $50 last week.

The McChord railroad bill will be up for final passage, perhaps to-day, and will have a close shave in the House, and may fail to get through. It has already passed the Senate.

Chas. E. Littlefield, of Maine, Dingley's successor, has leaped into sudden prominence as an orator compared by his friends to Clay, Webster and Hayne. His antagonism to the President's Porto Rican policy has made him at once a national figure.

Auditor Coulter has about $30,000 in funds not tied up by Republican claims and Treasurer Hager has arranged to deposit in a bank in Louisville that will pay checks without any trouble. The State's business will this week be running smoothly in all branches.

The Reward Bill has passed both houses and will be a law soon as signed by the Governor. Its provisions will be put into effect at once. Arrest of the main conspirators, who are known, will not follow until the Franklin county grand jury meets.

At the annual meeting of the national Editorial Association held at New Orleans last week W. T. Parrett, of the Reporter, Waterloo, Ia., was elected President. Buffalo, N. Y. was selected as the place of meeting next year. The editors are now on a tour of the Mississippi gulf coast.

Mr. W. E. Bourland, one of the most prominent Republicans in Webster county, has published a letter renouncing his allegiance to the Republican party and proclaiming himself a Democrat henceforth. His arraignment of the Republicans for their crimes at Frankfort is especially severe. Mr. Bourland is an attorney of Dixon and is a son-in-law of Dr. A. E. Bentley, of this city.

The Johnson Election Bill, amending the Goebel law, has passed the Senate and been advanced in the House. It will probably pass this week. It removes the party emblems from the official ballots, requires the paper for same to be furnished by the State Librarian, regulates the size and shape of the ballots and provides that all names shall be arranged alphabetically in one column, with a square after each name in which the cross shall be placed. The printing of the ballots is placed in the hands of the election commissioners and the clerk instead of the sheriff is made the umpire of the election. The most important provision is that the county boards are made non-partisan and the two leading parties name their own representatives in all precincts, two on each side, and minor parties get no representation at all. Illiterate voters may be instructed how to vote as the present law allows. This bill is objectionable to both Democrats and Republicans, but it is liable to be passed.

The railroad bond question has hung over Muhlenberg county for thirty years. Judge Sparks has been in conference with holders of the bonds and their representatives and an agreement was reached on a basis of 20 per cent. The old bonds aggregate about $650,000; some of the bonds have been funded and there are about $60,000 worth of the new bonds yet unpaid. The payment of the old bonds has been bitterly fought, because the people realized that to pay them in full would ruin the country, but the compromise proposition is meeting with general favor.

The story that Taylor will move his rump government to London and defy the courts as he has defied the Governor and General Assembly, is based on the fact that he is shipping the State's arms and military supplies to that point. It is more probable that Taylor is preparing to defy arrest if he should be needed by the grand jury next month. Another theory is that Judge W. L. Brown, whose seat was recently awarded to Jno. H. Wilson, will be allowed to imitate Taylor and hold on by military force.

Addition To The Bar.

Mr. L. M. Heminway, of Waterbury, Conn., was sworn in as an attorney at this bar Friday, having passed a most creditable examination before Judge John Phelps and Attorney George F. Campbell. Mr. Heminway came here several weeks ago from Charlottesville, Va., where he had been attending the University of Virginia.

Beware of Ointments For Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescription from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

"Difficulties give way to diligence," and disease germs and blood humors disappear when Hood's Sarsaparilla is faithfully taken.

What to Do Until the Doctor Arrives.

It is very hard to stand idly by and see our dear ones suffer while awaiting the arrival of the doctor. An Albany (N. Y.) dairyman called at a drug store there for a doctor to come and see his child, then very sick with croup. Not finding the doctor in, he left word for him to come at once on his return. He also bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which he hoped would give some relief until the doctor should arrive. In a few hours he returned saying the doctor need not come, as the child was much better. The druggist, Mr. Otto Schulz, says the family has since recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to their neighbors and friends until he has a constant demand for it from that part of the country. For sale by R. C. Hardwick, Druggist.

The house which Philadelphia presented to Gen. Grant in 1865 was damaged by fire.

E. Watson, Ala. Sold by R. C. Hardwick, Druggist.

THE CONUNDRUM CLUB.

A Puzzler Offered by One of the Members.

They had started a conundrum club, and everyone was expected to come prepared with a number of good ones.

"I've got one," Anderson said. "What is it?" queried the rest. "When is an apple pie?" He stopped, and everyone looked at him, but said nothing.

"Well," asked a man across the room, "go on. What did you stop there for?"

"Go on? Where? What for?" he asked.

"Why, go on with your conundrum. When is an apple pie what?"

"That's what I said," he replied.

"Well, we know; but what is the conundrum?"

"When is an apple pie?"

"There isn't any sense in that," put in another fellow. "What's the rest of it?"

"There isn't any rest," persisted Anderson. "When is an apple pie?"

"When is an apple pie what?" yelled the others.

"Who said any apple pie what?"

"You did."

"I didn't. I didn't say anything about an apple pie."

"You did."

"I didn't."

"You did."

"I didn't."

And then the whole assembly sat on Anderson, and when the police came in and rescued him it took half an hour to explain that an apple was pie when it was closed up with sugar and crust and things, like any pastry. It smashed up the club, though, and the conundrum's usefulness is that far established.—London Tit-Bits.

SURPRISED HER HOST.

Successful Authoress Who Wrote Over a Masculine Nom de Plume.

Alexander MacArthur, author of a successful study of life in the Latin Quarter of Paris, which brought to the writer both popularity and profit, is also the pupil and biographer of Rubinstein and is a close friend of Paderewski. The author lived for two years in St. Petersburg, corresponding for the London press, and taking part in some thrilling adventures, but the most singular of the writer's experiences happened in Chicago after the novel had been brought out by a publisher of that city. The book had been so successful that the publisher decided to give the author a dinner to which a dozen of the leading men of letters in the Lake City were invited. The guests had assembled when the author was announced.

Through the blue haze of smoke there appeared a handsome young woman attired in evening dress.

"We are expecting Mr. MacArthur," said the host; "Mr. Alexander MacArthur, the novelist."

"So I understood," returned the unexpected guest. "I am Alexander MacArthur."

"You?" gasped the publisher. "Yes. Didn't you know? I am Lillian MacArthur, at your service. I have been writing over the name of Alexander ever since I left my home in Dublin."

It was only the work of a minute to rearrange affairs, and the dinner was a great success.—Saturday Evening Post.

SYSTEM OF CHAPERONAGE.

Not as Rigid in America as on the Continent.

In the old world the system of chaperonage is very rigid indeed. In Europe young girls are taken care of as though they were the most precious pieces of porcelain. They are surrounded by a high wall of conventionalities that it is impossible to break down or vault over.

For a young girl to appear alone on a public street in many of the large European cities is to at once lay herself open to insult. In America, thank Heaven, the men are more chivalrous and gallant, and it is possible for a young lady to travel unattended from one city to another without the fear of being molested.

In the large eastern cities girls are most carefully chaperoned on all occasions. In many of the cities of the south there is greater latitude allowed, although in New Orleans, where French customs prevail, a girl may scarcely cross the street without the attendance of an elderly woman or her negro maid.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.
